Honoured By Labour - Zionists

The Right Honourable John G. Diefenbaker, Prime Minister of Canada, received the Histadrut Humanitarian Award.

The Israeli Ambassador to Canada, His Excellency Yaacov Herzog, presented the award to the Prime Minister on behalf of Israel's Unions, one of the most powerful Labour movements in the world.

Mr. Diefenbaker at this occasion made one of the most moving addresses of his career. He asked for religious freedom and tolerance and an end to discrimination on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The dinner honouring Diefenbaker took place Wednesday night April 4th at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, Montreal.

PM TELLS MOSCOW:

STOP HARASSING JEWS!

ALGERIA JEWS SEEK NEW HAVEN IN FRENCH CANADA

MONTREAL, (CJN) - The problem of admitting to Canada a great number of Algerians of European extraction has now become a topic of discussion on the highest level, according to your correspondent. Many Europeans in Algeria are planning to leave because they are unable to continue their life in a Moslem country. According to some estimates the number of would-be-emigrants is close to half a million..

It is also agreed that among the half million "Europeans" of Algeria, there are at least 100,000 potential Jewish emigrants. All of them are French by culture and education and would strengthen the cultural position of the French Canadians if admitted into Quebec.

Our investigation shows that the opposition towards a new liberal policy of immigration stems from two factors, incidentally two groups who are natural enemies, politically. The leftist circles here and in Quebec city claim that most of the Algerian Europeans are Fascists and supporters of the OAS. Others, on the right side of the fence, contend that the Algerian Frenchmen are non-Catholic, anti-clerical and would undermine the traditionally Catholic atmosphere of Quebec.

Both groups agree that Canada should be very careful in its policy of admitting emigrants from Algeria. However a study by this correspondent revealed that serious-thinking politicians here realize that a great number of French-speaking Algerians would definitely be a bonus for French Canada.

MANY WILL COME

Many Algerian Jews will go to Israel. Others will settle in France of which they are citizens but a great number would come to Canada, especially to French Canada if encouraged to do so. Well informed circles here predict that about 20,000 Algerian Jews would settle in Quebec if aided.

PREDICT GREATER CANADA ISRAEL BUSINESS RELATIONS

JERUSALEM, (CJN) — The Canadian trade mission to Israel which left here last Friday concluding a two-week survey of potential investments and business for Canadians, left a great impression upon the leading economists of the country.

(All the members of the delegation have already arrived this week in Canada.)

Prior to his return home, Mr. E. R. Ernst, of the bank of Montreal told the press here that the mission "made valuable contacts for increasing trade between Canada and Israel."

"NO CONTRACTS YET"

He said that all the members of the mission had found their visit both interesting and profitable, though no contracts have been signed during the visit. Also present at the press conference was Mr. J. M. Dery, the Canadian Charge d'Affaires.

INTERESTED IN PRODUCTS

Members of the mission told the press that they felt Israel could be a good market for Canadian manufactures because Canada was making custom goods, suitable for a small quality market. Lumber dealers found the tax on Canadian lumber very high, but manufacturers of earth removing equipment and building machines found Solel Boneh to be interested in their products.

EXCELLENT PRODUCTS

On the export side, the merchandise manager of the T. Eaton Co., Mr. C. F. Symonds, found Israel styling and manufacture of cotton goods "excellent" but somewhat expensive. He also liked Israel ceramics and furs.

A member of the delegation and Chairman of the Israel-Canada Chamber of Commerce, Sam Steinberg, of Montreal, told the Minister of Commerce and Industry, Mr. P. Sapir, that he planned to organize an Israel Week during which his 123 supermarkets throughout Canada would specialize in the sale of Israel goods.

DIEFENBAKER EXPRESSES FEELINGS OF OUTRAGE

Says World Will Not Tolerate Persecution

MONTREAL, (CJN) — In a dramatic speech to a capacity audience at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel here, Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker told the Russians in unequivical terms that the Free World and world opinion will not tolertae any religious persecution in the Soviet Union. Mr. Diefenbaker in addressing the Histadrut dinner, at which he received the Humanitarian Histadrut award, received a standing ovation at the conclusion of his remarks from an overwhelmingly Labor audience.

PERTURBED

The Prime Minister mentioned his feelings of outrage and alarm at the disturbing news from Russia concerning the persecution of religious groups and the singling out of the Jewish minority for harrassment. He declared that he was deeply concerned about the trend of events in the USSR and that the Free World and all liberty loving nations are perturbed by the reports from Moscow.

FREEDOM FOR ALL

Mr. Diefenbaker alluded jestingly to the Socialist economy when he spoke of the fact that the Russians are forced to execute people for alleged speculation and black marketeering. He then appealed to Moscow to appease the conscience of the world by giving freedom of exercising religious rites to all denominations without distinction.

GROWING RELATIONS WITH ISRAEL

The Prime Minister then mentioned the growing business relations between Canada and Israel and promised that they will flourish more in the interest of both Canada and Israel.

FIRST WORLD LEADER TO SPEAK UP

The Prime Minister was interrupted several times by loud applause from the assembled who were deeply moved by his outright condemnation of bigotry behind the Iron Curtain.

Mr. Diefenbaker is the first leader of a nation to publicly denounce the USSR for persecution of religious minorities.

The Canadian Jewish News will publish next week the full text of Mr. Diefenbaker's historic speech.

U.S. Israel Negotiations About Syria

JERUSALEM (JCNS) -Last Sunday Israeli Prime Minister, David Ben-Gurion, called upon U.S. Ambassador Walworth Barbour in an attempt to convince him that the "Nukeib action" (the attack against Syria) was a direct result of Syria's aggression in Lake Kinneret.

B.G. OPPOSES CENSURE

Ben-Gurion hoped that the Ambassador would use his influence in persuading the United Sates to rescind its proposed motion of censure against Israel in the Security Council which convened last Tuesday.

Meanwhile, according to reports received in Israel, France has already notified the United States that she has no intention whatsoever of supporting the vote of censure. Great Britain and the Latin American countries also followed suit.

U.N. REPORT FAVOURABLE TO ISRAEL

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., (JCNS) The Syrians were adequately warned in advance that Israel would counter-attack to end the Kinneret firings, and the U.N. Chief or Staff took the unprecendented step of passing on this threat to Damascus, General Van Horn revealed in his report to the Security Council. The report was published here last week end.

General Van Horn said that on March 9 he was requested by the Israeli Foreign ministry to advise Damascus that "Israel regarded the attacks on her police patrol boats in Lake Kinneret as very grave, and wished the Syrian Government to realise that by such actions it was playing with fire."

In his comments, General Van Horn stated: "I have never considered that U.N. representatives should be requested to relay messages which could be construed as open or implied threats. Such messages were liable to produce an effort contrary to that which had been expected. However, in view of the statement that Israel's intention was not to threaten but to make her stand clear to the Syrians, I asked the Chairman of the Armistice Commission to transmit the mesage. In case another incident were to occur the U.N. representatives should not be reproached for not having made Israel's position clear."

In the report, in which Israel is shown favourably, the General proposed that U.N. military observers should be allowed to visit the demilitarised zone and the so-called 'defensive areas", to see whether the military build-up was going on, as both sides claim, and whether the forces, recently brought into the area, have been withdrawn. He then revealed that he would be able to get Damascus to approve of the establishment of an observation post in El Koursi vicinity, and Israel to promise to keep her patrol boats away for a few days while the post was being built.

ERA OF MESSIAH?

OSLO, (JCNS) — The Jews, through their wanderings among the countries, have strengthened European culture and shaped the best aspects of ethics in all Christian communities, said Dr. Marcus Melchior, the Copenhagen Chief Rabbi, when addressing the Society of Norwegian Students here last Sunday.

Judaism's teaching of the belief that the Messiah would come as a person should be changed into "the time of Messiah", Dr. Marcus said. This will bring a new and better world to humanity, and perhaps the United Nations should be looked upon as the Messianic era.

ELATH NEW PRESIDENT OF HEBREW UNIVERSITY

JERUSALEM (CJN) — Eliahu Elath was unanimously elected President of the Hebrew University at the final session of the Board of Governors in Jerusalem last weekend.

Mr. Elath, a former Ambassador to the U.S. and to Britain, and a graduate of the Hebrew University, was proposed by Mr. Pinhas Rosen. His appointment is for four years.

Responding, Mr. Elath said he regarded his election "an honour which a graduate of the University could only have dreamt of".

Mr. J. G. Liebes, Israel writer and translator, was elected Vice-President, a post he has held temporarily for the past year.

Judge Louis E. Levinthal, of Philadelphia, was elected Chairman of the Board, in succession to Dr. George S. Wise, who had resigned.

Commentary • By M. J. Nurenberger

Globke, The Indispensable

When in Europe last year, I asked several German friends who are known for their militant anti-Nazi past why Dr. Hans Globke had not been fired by Chancellor Adenauer. Globke is one of the "former Nazis" stationed high up on the West German government ladder, who serves as Adenauer's chief aide. He is the author of the infamous Nuremberg laws, the "legal basis" for Hitler's anti-Jewish policy.

When Dr. Robert Servatius, Eichmann's counsel, raised the demand at the Supreme Court session that Globke be summoned as a witness in order to help clear Eichmann, I thought again of my conversations with Germans about this former Nazi lawyer.

One does not have to possess any legal training to understand Servatius' reason for wanting Globke to appear. He (Globke) would merely tell the Israeli Court that he was FORCED to write the legal terminology for the racial laws of Hitler — just as Eichmann had been forced to execute the policy of extermination. THIS is the classical attitude of Nazis when they are made to repent: they hated under duress; they acted under duress; they killed under duress.

Some of the leading West German newspapers stress the fact that it would be difficult to keep Globke now after Servatius' demand. The Erankfurter Rundschau, for instance, says about Globke: "The demand of Dr. Servatius alone is enough to make him blush — with shame. But, as we know him, he will not make use of it. Instead, we have no alternative but to feel ashamed for him, again."

The KOELNER STADT-ANZEIGER goes even further. It states: "He (Globke) was linked to Eichmann. Both participated in the drafting or implementation of the racial laws."

All these comments remind me of my German interlocutors. But I can also remember that whenever I raised the question of Globke, the answer was: "Er ist unentbehrlich!" (He is indispensable). When I further asked, "Who says so?", the reply was, "der Alte." (Adenauer).

It is tragic when a leader of a country is obliged to defend the man who participated in the formulating of the racial laws. It is perhaps more so when he believes that a man with such an ugly Nazi past is indispensable. Indispensable for what? For whom?

CJN Visits Soviet Embassy

Still No Matzot For Soviet Jews

OTTAWA, (CJN). — Mr. Ivan Mironov, head of the press department and press attaché of the Soviet embassy here told the editor of the Canadian Jewish News on Monday that the Soviet government is "not under obligation to supply matzot to Jews through the state bakeries", as it is not committed to furnish "koletsch" (Easter bread) to Greek-orthodox Russians.

NO DISCRIMINATION

Mr. Mironov told the Canadian Jewish News: "If the Soviet government found it opportune — and I say "If" — to discontinue the practice of baking matzot in the state bakeries, it has nothing to do with any policy of discrimination as indicated in some newspapers."

Mr. Mironov received the CJN editor M. J. Nurenberger at the offices of the press department of the Soviet embassy and "assured" him that there was no anti-Jewish policy involved in any instructions concerning matzot production.

"SURPRISED"

In order to prove that the Soviet government is not anti-Jewish, the Russian official produced a photostat of a copy of the Yiddish literary journal appearing in Moscow. Mr. Mironov was "surprised" when told that The Canadian Jewish News long ago reported that such a Yiddish publication exists in Moscow. Also the CJN told Mr. Mironov that "we are very happy that the Soviet government avails itself of the medium of Yiddish for its propaganda purposes, but 'Sovietish Haimland" does not answer the question whether Jews in the USSR are allowed to practise their religion.

Mr. Mironov continued to insist that there was no discrimination in the Soviet Union.

PROBLEM OF INDIVIDUAL

"In Russia," Mr. Mironov stated, "religion and state are separated. The bakeries belong to the state. Thus, if they should supply matzot to Jews, or koletsch to the Greek orthodox, they would be guilty of supporting religion by supplying religious needs." "Religious observance, facilities for observance," Mr. Mironov added, "is the problem of the individual."

When we asked Mr. Mironov how a private individual in the Soviet Union can bake matzot outside a state bakery, the Soviet official repeated the cliche: there was no discrimination and that "no Jew or non-Jew would be persecuted for practising the rites of his belief."

The statement by Mr. Mironov indicates, of course, that, for the first time, Jews in Russia will have no matzot for this Passover.

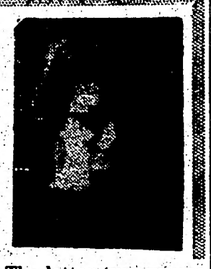
TORONTO ORBIT



THE TALK OF OUR TOWN: Toronto Team on Archaeological "Dig" in Israel... Ryerson's Arab Spokesman speaks up... Here and There.

By BERNICE DYMENT

Five Torontonians, experts in archaeology and Near Eastern studies, are off to the Holy Land this month to participate in a 5-year archaeological project to unearth the ancient city of Jerusalem. This will be one of the major undertakings of the Royal Ontario Museum's Golden Jubilee Year, and heading the project is Dr. A. D. Tushingham, head of the museum's Art and Archaeology Division.

I had the pleasure of meeting Dr. Tushingham last year when he delivered the Anniversary Lecture of the Toronto Jewish Historical Society at the museum. Subject of his discourse on that occasion was, "Joshua and the Israel Invasion."

I recall having discussed with him some of the difficulties encountered by archaeologists involved in projects in Israel and the surrounding Arab countries. An Arab boycott, similar to the one in effect against movie stars who appear in Israel, pertains also to scientists engaged in projects on Israeli territory. This means that archeologists who "dig" in Israel are banned from ever engaging in similar research on Arab territory.

In the case of the current expedition, Dr. Tushingham told me that all the work will be done around the old walled city of Jerusalem which now lies within the borders of Jordan. Hence, the boycott presents no problem.

This is a joint operation undertaken in cooperation with the British School of Archaeology and the French School of Biblical and Archaeological Studies in Jerusalem. The latter two groups began excavating last year during the three-months "digging season," and our team will be joining in on the remaining four years of the project. Grants to assist in the undertaking have been provided by the University of Toronto and several affiliated colleges.

Although digging has been going on around the old city of Jerusalem for the past 100 years, what has been discovered so far provided only a scanty plotting on the reconstructed map of the city as it was in David's time, and when Herod reigned. During the fighting in 1947-48, the Jewish quarter was badly damaged by mortar-fire. Before work is begun on rebuilding the quarter, archaeologists have a rare opportunity to excavate to their heart's content. Through bits of pottery, through discovering wall formations, and tunnels to the ancient water-supply (the Biblical Spring of Gihon), it is hoped that some positive inferences can be drawn about the authenticity of the Bible stories.

For the Tushinghams, this will be in the nature of a family affair, for Mrs. Tushingham will be a member of the Toronto team as well. She is a noted archaeologist in her own right, having conducted previous "digs" for the Museum and having participated as well in expeditions to Greece and Jericho.

Other members of the Toronto team are Dr. George Dales, assistant curator of the Near Eastern department; Prof. John Wevers of the U. of T.'s Near Eastern Department; and Mrs. Faith Stanley who will serve as registrar. Her duties will involve cataloguing all the objects excavated which will form the basis of the study. Interim reports on the expedition's findings will appear in the Museum's monthly newsletters throughout the coming summer.

ARE ZIONISTS SMALL-TIME NAZIS?

If you ask Jim Peters, English instructor at Toronto's Ryerson Institute for the answer to the above question, you'll get an emphatic YES! This is the opinion he expressed in an interview published in the March 15th issue of THE RYERSONIAN, the school newspaper. Under the head-line, "Zionism Like Nazism Only Difference — Size," Mr. Peters stated "racial and religious attitudes, land theft and many other aspects of present day Israel parallel those of Hitler's Germany." As for relations between the Arabs and Jews, he considers the present antagonism a great irony for "the Jews were never persecuted as a minority in the Arab countries in the same way they were in the Western countries." (He should have a chat with some of the Moroccan Jews who managed to escape from that bastion of "democracy"!)

Several keys to understanding statements such as those above can be found in the Ryerson interview. Mr. Peters, said the writer, is a man of "controversial opinions" (that's for sure), and also, he is merely an "armchair traveller" as far as the Middle East is concerned he has never been there himself.

I did a little research on my own hook, and what I discovered seems to confirm that Mr. Peters is indeed "controversial' and an "armchair" student. Born in Canada, of Lebanese and Syrian descent, he studied Arabic as part of his university curriculum. He has been a teacher at Ryerson for the past 12 years. He is a strong "Arab-phile," and founder of the "Canadian-Arab Friendship Society." It should be added here that Mr. Peters' group recently seceded from their counterpart organization based in London, Ontario.

He is apparently not anti-Jewish, and has a number of Jewish friends. He is a member of the Ethical Education Association, and is opposed to compulsory religious education in our schools.

He was spokesman for the group which picketed the film "Exodus," although he had not at that time seen the picture. (His students bought him a ticket later).

No one questions Mr. Peters' right to his opinions — and no one questions THE RYERSONIAN's right to print his views. What is in question is the wisdom of allowing such statements as "Zionism Like Nazism" to go unchallenged, weighted as they are in the minds of students with the authority of Mr. Peters' position as a teacher.

Will some one accept the challenge?

ISRAELI RUBBER TO MALAYA

SINGAPORE, Malaya — (JCNS) A rubber company in Hedera, Israel, is making an all-out effort to sell its products on the local market here Mr. Haim Rosen assistant export manager of the "Alliance Tyre and Rubber Co. Ltd.," said here last week.

"We introduced motor vehicle tyres a year ago, and this has proved successful. Now we plan to push ahead with its sales promotion programme," Mr. Rosen told the JCNS correspondent.

He claimed that the tyres which his company produced were suitable for Malayan road conditions. The company manufactures tyres for cars, trucks and agricultural vehicles. With such advantages as cheap labour in Israel, direct shipping, and the devaluation of the pound, prompt and regular deliveries are assured, he added.

He then said that the Israel rubber factory at present produces 1,500 tyres daily. These are exported to Europe, East and West Africa, and South America.

Mr. Rosen, who operates from Bangkok, supervises his company's business in Burma, Hong Kong, Ceylon, Singapore and Thailand.

BARON ROTHSCHILD AND CARMEL: THE STORY

Thanks to the foresight and assistance of the late Baron Edmond de Rothschild, the world famous French banker and wine expert, the vineyards of Richon Le Zion — home of Carmel Sparkling Wine — have grown from most humble beginnings into the largest and most productive wine center in the world.

Carmel's treasured wine heritage dates back some 3,500 years ago to the time when Moses sent emissaries to reconnoiter the land of Israel and bring back the fruits thereof. Two of the men returned carrying a cluster of grapes suspended upon a pole between them. Recognizing its historic tie with the ancient Israelites, Carmel adapted this Biblical reference as its trade symbol, a symbol which is each year becoming more familiar in thousands of households across Canada.

In 1882, a group of colonists, imbued with the love of their ancient homeland, migrated to the Holy Land and established the first settlement in modern Israel, the aforementioned Richon Le Zion (First in Zion). Like their Biblical predecessors, they found that the unique combination of soil and climate made the land for viticulture. With the help of Baron de Rothschild, several varieties of grapes were planted in 1886. Four year later, the first Israel wines were ready. Their fine taste, bouquet and color surpassed the fondest hopes of everyone. Truly, this was a land worthy of the vintner's art!

Since 1890, the blessed hills of Richon Le Zion have continued to bring forth Carmel wines of incomparable merit. The unique eternal combination of soil and climate have wedded modern technology to achieve in Carmel the quintessence of the wine maker's art — wines which have won numerous international awards at exhibitions and fairs throughout the world.

The Lighter Side

HOW TO MAKE AN ENEMY

For making enemies there's nothing better than a wedding. The enemies are of two types — those whom you don't invite and those you do.

The first group is larger and inescapable. It is no use planning to invite everybody, because the more people you invite the bigger the circumference of displeasure.

If you invite the immediate family, parents, brothers, and sisters, then you have only the cousins to contend with.

If you invite cousins, then you have outraged a vast periphery of second-cousins, but if you invite second-cousins as well, then there is the danger that you have alienated the entire community.

On the day after you have sent the invitations out the phone starts and does not stop until two weeks after the wedding. It may go like this:

"Nahum?"

"Yes."

"Thank you for the invitation for your wedding."

"That's all right."

"You should have much nachas."

"Please, God, by your Virginia."

"Thank you, Nahum; but that reminds me. Haven't you forgotten something?"

"Have I?"

"You haven't invited Virginia."

"But she's only two!"

"She'll be three next October." Or someone may phone your wife.

"Sarah? This is Bessie, Sarah."

"Hullo, Bessie. Did you receive the invitation?"

"I did, Sarah, thanks very much. But, listen, can I ask you a small favour? Would you like to invite my Leah's boy-friend?"

"I should love to. Are they engaged?"

"Well, not exactly, but they've been going out."

"For a long time?"

"Since yesterday, but he's a serious type of boy and I should like him to be at the wedding. And, Sarah?"

"Yes?"

"Could you invite his parents as well?"

As the wedding gets nearer you begin to panic. You have sent out 800 invitations, in anticipation that some 600 will accept — a reasonable belief in view of the fact that scores, if not hundreds, of them were sent to Manchester, Glasgow, and other outlying places.

But the acceptances come flooding in. Some bright spark in Manchester hires a couple of buses, and the week-end of the wedding has coincided with the Scotland v. England soccer international. Your friends from Glasgow are coming down by special train.

By now, however, you are confronted with the far graver issue of the seating plan. The people you have not invited were probably only your friends, and the enmity of a friend can wear off, but the people you can misplace may very likely be your relatives — and earth knows no fury like a relative misplaced.

In drawing up a seating plan there are certain procedures to be followed.

You will be expected to find a place for the rabbi, and if he is accompanied by his wife she should be as near him as possible, because that is a good example for young people.

Eliyahu Kitov Guest Here

Mr. Eliyahu Kitov (Avraham Mokotowski) of Israel, scholar, educator and author of such books as Ish Uvaito (A Man and His Home) and Sefer HaTodaah (The Book of Jewish Self-Consciousness), is visiting Canada. He is soliciting support for a new historic work, the Sefer Haparshiot, a volume of the best commentaries on each of the Sidrot of Humash.

One aspect of Mr. Kitov's talents is his ability to reach out to children, to fill them with love and understanding of the great stories and concepts of the Bible. In simple Hebrew, and in poetic fashion, he gives in his volumes elucidating commentaries and interpretations of the great events of the Creation and the Flood. He spins his "tales" with skill, imagination and genuine love for the Jewish child.

One cannot but become the richer in understanding the Bible because of Mr. KiTov's tremendous undertaking.

Mr. KiTov's works will be available in English shortly.

Last Sunday morning, Mr. KiTov was the guest of honor at a breakfast in the home of Dr. Maurice B. Weinberg, 86 Bannockburn Avenue.

The Adath Israel Sisterhood Players under the capable direction of Mrs Ben Abbott and Mrs. Harry Pollock, will present a musical revue, especially written for this Donor Dinner, "Sisterhood On Television." Cantor Murray Nixon will lead the Birkat Hamazon.

Greetings from the Synagogue will be given by the President, Sol Wainberg.

ON DISCRIMINATION

THE PATTERN OF NORTH AMERICA

The conclusions outlined in a new book about discrimination, published by the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith in New York, have created concern in many circles. Although the findings of the B'nai B'rith leaders, Messrs. Benjamin R. Epstein and Arnold Forster, deal mainly with the United States, most of them are applicable to the North American scene in general. They are reminiscent of last year's commotion concerning anti-Jewish discrimination in Canadian banks and other "restricted" areas of activity here.

This B'nai B'rith book, "Some of My Best Friends", depicts anti-Jewish discrimination as "virtually a built-in part of American living".

We are happy to note that the authors of the book add: "Jews have found greater opportunity and security" on the North American continent than anywhere else — at any time in history.

The above statement is very important and a propos. It is true, for example, that a Jew can become the prime minister of France. On the other hand, that a Jew could lead a government in North America is inconceivable. Despite this, however, it is incorrect to assume that the position of North American Jewry fares worse than that of our brethren in Western Europe.

The results of the B'nai B'rith findings may be true. Neverthless we feel that, without probing deeper into the causes of this 'North American pattern", one runs the risk of distorting the picture of our society.

THE UNITED SYNAGOGUE

JEWISH "DENOMINATIONS"

The annual conference of Conservative synagogues, held in Toronto this week, again reminded us of the problems which face each constructive movement within Jewry. Many people are under the false impression that because the Conservative Movement has grown so rapidly in the last twenty years in North America, it need not answer questions which plague every other expression of Judaism.

When they speak of the three denominations in Judaism — the Orthodox, the Reform and the Conservative — they are mistaken about the religious structure of the Jewish people. There is no "religious" division within Jewry, certainly not among Jews who believe and who share the same attachment to the ancient "Shma Yisrael". There are neither Conservative Jews, Reform Jews nor Orthodox Jews — if one interprets these terms as denoting different religious denominations. There are no denominations in Living Israel: all Jews are called Maminim bnai maminim, — believers, sons of believers. The non-Jewish world does not accept the differentiation which some of us, given to theological hair-splitting, are wont to practice. So feels the average Jew. It never occurs to him that there is a difference between a Conservative, Reform or Orthodox Jew.

Furthermore, if one accepted this line of separation among so-called Jewish "sects", we would have to subdivide them ad infinitum. There are reformers in the deep American South who are completely assimilated and overtly covet the dissolution of Judaism. They are Reform Jews, such as we know here in Toronto or in many centers of the United States, dedicated to eternal Israel. There are Conservative temples which are very close to some extremely Reform houses of worship, and there are those of the stature of Dr. Louis Finkelstein and our own Canadian Conservative rabbis who believe in perpetuating the tradition of our people. There are, also, Orthodox Jews of the Neturei Karta group, extreme in their militancy against any concession to time and environment, and those who are ultra-modern — they believe in the words of Rabbi Mayer: discard the shell of a nut and preserve the sweetmeat.

Thu the problems of facing the modern age are not the exclusive concern of the traditional and Orthodox Jew. They are also shared by others. Because of its march forward in the last decades, the Conservative movement must answer some of these queries confronting our Jewish generation.

One of the most important resolutions recently adopted by the National Convention of the United Synagogue of America was a code recommending that congressional board members be able to read Hebrew and endeavor to participate in worship services. This is one of the many contributions in the battle against Hebrew illiteracy, which is the task of our generation and for which the leadership of the United Synagogue should be commended.

We, in Ontario, have every reason and right to be especially proud of our sixteen Conservative synagogues. They are an integral part of our community and in the forefront of the battle for Jewish spiritual and physical survival.

We hope that the annual meeting of the Ontario Region of the United Synagogue held in Toronto brought its leaders closer to the solution of the problems facing all synagogues within the Jewish fold.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE?

SYRIA AND THE NASSER MACHINE

Who is the cause of trouble in the Middle East? Is it hard to answer this question?

The time-bomb placed by Omani terrorists in the hold of the British ship Dara, and Syrian shelling of Israeli fishing boats are part of a single pattern. Cairo has been financing, arming, and inciting the Omani rebels for several years. Indeed, the "Omani Office" in Egypt is not only a propaganda centre but for some years has been the nerve centre of Omani terrorism and gun running.

Cairo has boasted of the guns and minesit supplies to the terrorists while Cairo Radio's special daily programme for the Gulf States has frequently incited the Omanis to violence of one sort or another against the British Forces there, the Sultan's levies and "collaborators of colonialism", i.e., any Arabs who do not accept the Imam of Oman's claims.

Since 1959, Cairo's hegemony over Nationalist extremist movements in the Persian Gulf have been challenged by Iraq. General Kassem is now devoting broadcasting time and, if his own radio is to be believed, material means as well, to the support of existing rebel movements or the creation of new ones. This competition has inevitably maintained a white heat of extremism long after the conflict which brought it about, came to an end. At present the Omani movement is still controlled by Cairo.

Since the break-up of the U.A.R. the Syrian Government has been busily looking for ways of out-Nassering Nasser; one obvious method has been by anti-Israeli threats and actions, another is by promoting various schemes for Arab unity which sound impressive but commit no one to anything.

The Syrians were bound to begin threatening war over the Jordan-water scheme and firing on Kineret fishermen, because these parts are an essential element in the show of Arab militancy they put on to meet Cairo's accusations of being imperialist and Zionist catspaws. This makes nonsense of the admonitions to Israel from various sources in this country to avoid stirring up trouble, by variously postponing the Jordan water project "sine die" and by turning the other cheek when the Syrians fire on fishermen and police. The whole point is that the Syrians need these clashes and are determined to have them one way or the other: Syria will lose no water by the Kineret pumping scheme; the Syrian Army knew what it was doing when it fired on the boats. But if the Israeils had given in Dawalibi and his colleagues would have found something else, for the simple reason that they fear Nasser's subversion far more than they fear Israeli reprisals.

One prong of the new alliance will be a "Palestinian Representative Body and Army in exile, made up of Kassem's tame Palestinians (including Has Amin el Husseini, the ex-Mufti of Jerusalem) and those in Syria who were till recently under Nasser's tutelage and escaped the post-Nasserite purge. (Palestinians had been prominent in carrying out Nasser's dirty work against the Syrians and had become extremely unpopular as a result) Israel can hardly remain unaffected by these developments, but there seems to be nothing that the Israelis, or anyone else, can do at this stage.

Who Is An American-Jewish Writer?

New York's Ninety-second Street Y.M.-Y.W.H.A. sponsors a Poetry Centre devoted to "reading by American and foreign poets, playwrights, and authors". This is its twenty-third season, and once again T. S. Eliot gave two readings to packed houses. For many years Hebrew and Yiddish poets, as well as poets writing in English for Jews primarily, have argued that a Jewish institution, such as the Ninety-Second Street "Y", should present Leivick, Glatstein, Efros, Lisitzky, and A. M. Klein rather than Eliot, Auden, Sean O'Faolain, and Dame Edith Sitwell. They refer to the "Janowsky Survey" of 1948, which, finding the Jewish community centres and "Ys" deficient in Jewishness, recommended "that the programme of the Jewish Centre should devote primary attention to Jewish content."

Replying to the critics of the Poetry Centre's numerus nullus for Hebrew, Yiddish, and "Jewishly Jewish" English poets, Dr. William Kolodney, Educational Director of the "Y", stated that when the Centre presented A. M. Klein, the distinguished Canadian-Jewish poet, not even a minyan and a half came to hear him, while Eliot attracts audiences of almost a thousand. Moreover, Dr. Kolodney said, the dificit of the Jewish Omnibus courses at the "Y" is covered by the earnings of the Poetry Centre.

The Ninety-Second Street "Y" is a beneficiary of the New York Federation of Jewish Charities, which has just embarked on a $104 milion building campaign and a $22½ million maintenance drive. Obviously, the Federation cannot afford a two-thousand-dollar subsidy for a poetry centre devoted to Jewish poetry....

The New York Federation has a long-standing reputation for the special variety of Jewish obsequiousness towards "prominent Gentiles," even those with anti-Jewish bias, which Achad Ha'am considered typical of the "slavery in freedom" mentality of Jews "who protest too much" in professing 'cosmopolitan tolerance." By the way, when reading at the Ninety-Second Street "Y" Mr. Eliot, to, is a slave in freedom. He has not yet recited there his lines:

My house is a decayed house,
And the Jew squats on the window-sill, the owner,
Sprawned in some estaminet of Antwerp.

National Identy

This was during Jewish Book Month and the season of lectures on 'The American-Jewish Novel." But is there really a subdivision of American fiction to which the label 'American-Jewish" may be attached?

Histories of American literature and studies of contemporary American fiction give full recognition to the novels and short stories of writers who are Jews and write about Jews. But American critics do not consider novels about Jewish life as a separate entity. For example, Ihan Hassan's new book, "Radical Innocence: The Contemporary American Novel" (Princeton University Press) concentrates on thirteen novelists, six of them Jews who specialise in fiction peopled with Jewish characters and set in a Jewish milieu. Professor Hassan does not classify these writers (Harvey Swados, Norman Mailer, Bernard Malamud, Herbert Gold, J. D. Salinger, and Saul Bellow) as Jewish writers of American Jewish fiction. Indeed, they are Jews, and they do write out of their Jewish experience, but their language is American English and thus their books are part of American literature.

QUEBEC JEWRY STATES ITS CASE

Quebec Jewry has finally had its say on the question of its status in the province's unique educational system. The Canadian Jewish Congress, Quebec section, has presented a document of 21 pages, foolscap format, summarizing its views after a process of internal Jewish communal inquiry that lasted several months.

TWO MAIN POINTS

The brief does not ask for a separate system of Jewish schools, as some would wish and to which the Jews of Quebec might be legally entitled, but makes the following requests:

a) An official recognition of the fact that the majority of Jewish children attend and will continue to attend the Protestant schools and are entitled to be represented on the school boards by Jewish school trustees. (Though a court has recognized the right of Jewish trustee to run in St. Martin, the Privy Council decision against this has not been rescinded). Such recognition would bring with it automatic exemption for Jewish pupils from Christian religious instruction, and automatic excuse from attendance on Jewish holidays for Jewish pupils and teachers.

b) Government funds, say the brief, should be allocated to existing Jewish Day Schools for the secular part of their studies, i.e., the government should contribute to that part of the curriculum that deals with the traditional courses in reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, etc.

A FEW PARADOXES

What are the implications that flow from these two demands? First, it means that the Canadian Jewish Congress, after testing opinion and practice, feels that the education of the younger generation of Jew in Quebec is bound up in the main with the Protestant school system. To quote the brief:

"We do not suggest a separate school system for the Jewish community. While one school system would be preferable to two systems, we believe that two systems are preferable to three or more systems. We all are interested in promoting unity in the community and the avoidance of fragmentization since it is contrary to the interest of the community as a whole".

There are, of course, certain inconsistencies in adopting this position, inconsistencies which perhaps are unavoidable in the complexities and anomalies of the Quebec situation. No demand can be made for the removal of religious education, for how can this be demanded in a system that is known by the label of "Protestant?" Also how can one demand for Jews a status within schools that officially bear the name "Protestant"?

The second request shows that, while it is expected that most Jewish parents in Montreal will continue to use the facilities of the Protestant schools, there are and will be Jews who will conscientiously feel unable to send their children to schools that bear a sectarian Christian label. Such parents should not be penalized financially in this kind of situation (where there is no alternative of a non-sectarian public school) and the state should subsidize the non-religious portion of the Jewish Day Schools. Montreal, of course, has a far greater number of such Day Schools than Toronto.

The brief also contains a wealth of statistical and socio-economic data about Quebec Jewry, and has a brief but informative history of the ups and downs of the Quebec school question as it had developed over the past 60 years.

"PROTESTANT" SCHOOLS WITH JEWISH MAJORITIES

There are 21 Protestant schools in Greater Montreal which have a majority of Jewish pupils enrolled in them. Of these, only three are located in the "old area" of Jewish settlement in Central Montreal. Four are in Outrement, two in St. Laurent, one each in Mount Royal and Hampstead and eleven in the new outer suburbs. Five of these are high schools and 16, elementary. One "Protestant" high school, Northmount, has a

REPORT FROM ARGENTINA

AFTER FRONDIZI: THE JEWISH POSITION

By MISSIM ELNECAVE

During the last two years there has been a considerable rescrudescence of antisemitism in Argentina. It was touched off by the world-wide swastika epidemic following the Cologne Synagogue incident, and has since continued unabated on a widespread scale.

Hardly a week passes without some antisemitic incident in Buenos Aires, Cordoba, Mar del Plata, San Juan, and other cities. Windows of Jewish institutions have been broken, walls daubed with such Nazi-type slogans as "Heil Hitler," "Long live the Inquisition," "Down with the Jews;" a Hachshara farm has been raided at night, with damage to life and property; Jewish students have been ruthlessly beaten up, and one of them severely disfigured; synagogues have been desecrated, three such incidents having been reported in one day.

Without a doubt the outrages are organised by Nazi elements, mainly foreign settlers who lead small, local, well-trained gangs. The abduction of Eichmann and the known fact that Argentina is a hiding-place for war criminals, are two further factors which have strengthened antisemitism activities.

Time and again the D.A.I.A. — the presentative body of Argentine Jewry — has visited President Frondizi, the Interior Minister, Dr. Alfredo Vitolo, or the Chief of Police, Captain Recareldo Vazquez. to protest against these antisemitic outbreaks. And each time senior Government representatives have issued declarations strongly condemning the incidents, but there is not a single instance of any practical steps taken by the authorities to apprehend and punish the culprits.

It is universally acknowledged that the Government entertains no antisemitic feelings whatsoever. On the contrary, the outbreaks are causing the authorities considerable embarrassment on the home front as well as abroad.

The mass of the population, traditionally staunch Catholics — is not generally hostile to Jews. The establishment of the State of Israel has added to the respect and esteem in which Jews are held throughout Argentina.

There are, nevertheless, a couple of numerically small organisations — Tacuara and Mazorca — which are typical neo-fascist gangs recruited from among teenagers of top-ranking society. They are supported and encouraged by some Catholic and military reactionary groups. They direct attention to those circles which are most vulnerable — those who are afraid of losing their class privileges in the face of the social and political confusion which is taking deep root in Latin America, of which Castroism is the main progenitor. In such an atmosphere of social instability antisemitism is a cheap fuel to the flames, and time and again the anti-Jewish movement is promoted also by forces on which the Frondizi Government has to rely (principally the army and certain elements, within the Church.)

Most of the members of Tacuara and Mazorca are teenagers who, according to Argentine law, are immune from arrest for petty offences. The leaders, in a few cases, are in their middle twenties, and the campaign is planned by foreign agitators.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

MY BROTHER THE LEPER

Our Sidra is in effect a medical treatise. It deals with the dread disease of leprosy as our ancestors in Biblical times understood it. It describes the diagnosis, and it prescribes the method of isolation. As a medical dissertation the text is understandably archaic; but historically our Sidra remains instructive. Even in remotest antiquity, already at the dawn of our history, the Torah, the great Teacher of religion and ethics, the Book that speaks to the spirit of man, did not overlook the needs of the bodily shrine in which our immortal soul resides upon earth. Spiritual and physical health were alike the concern of the Mosaic Law.

"Archaic but historically instructive" — that is the first modern reaction to the Sidra of "Tazria." But it is not the final assessment. Year by year as we recapitulate in Synagogue the ancient laws of leprosy, a strange feeling comes over the perceptive reader. Is it really so old, so archaic? Surprising overtones of modernity become increasingly audible. Our Sages declared that the word "metsora" (leper) is an abbreviation of "motsi shem ra" (a slanderer); that the disease is a punishment for tale-bearing. Thus Judaism provides an ethical base for its medical diagnosis, and links the physical and the psychological in a challenging unity. Is this the embryonic beginning of psychosomatic medicine?

But that is not all. The modernity of our Bible lesson seems to overtake our epoch and bring it a message of healing. When the Rabbis speak of moral leprosy, of the plague of slander and libel, their teaching is as topical and contemporary as Khrushchev's latest pronuciamento. Unwittingly, they diagnose the great malaise of our age. Mankind has never been in greater peril than it is today; and the danger stems not from an extraneous source, but from the very heart of man. The verbal missiles, and not the nuclear bombs, are the primary danger.

Neither nature nor science is our foe. Man is his own supreme enemy. Our world is divided into mutually hostile camps, and the great aim of each seems to be to denigrate the other with all the means at its disposal. Slander and libel and outright lying have created in all parts of the world an image of our fellow man that is as wicked as it is false. This leprous propaganda must inevitably result in a world wide contagion of strife and global destruction.

We need to call a halt to this evil international vilification even more than to the stock-piling of armaments. We must realise that the "leper" is our brother. Let us see all men again as children of God, created in the Divine Image, and we shall have healed the world's greatest plague; nay more, we shall have laid the foundation for the fulfillment of Isaiah's vision of a world blessed with enduring peace and the universal brotherhood of man.

ONLY IN AMERICA

By HARRY GOLDEN

THE SOUTH'S TRAGEDY

The U.S. Census Bureau recently reported the continuing movement of Negro migration to the North.

The State of Mississippi, it reported, showed a loss in Negro population of 323,000 from 1950 to 1960 and the states that lost 175,000 or more Negroes included Alabama, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, and Arkansas.

I have seen segregationists smile at these figures, but they are smiling at a Southern tragedy. They should know that the more Negro college graduates there are, the greater the movement of Negroes from the South to other parts of the country.

I would like to submit my own survey in one corner of the South to the Census Bureau. Early in 1960, we were able to track down 162 of the graduates of three North Carolina Negro colleges of the two previous years. We found that only 47 were still in my state and that most of the 47 were teachers, and clergymen serving the Negro population; several were truck drivers and one was a janitor.

Of the 47 remaining college graduates only 18 were following the professions for which they were trained. The other 115 college graduates were in 20 other states of the Union. Thus my state had spent a fortune in preparing a Negro who is now working in Camden, N.J., and a Negro stenographer who is now in Washington, D.C.

Where is the intelligence behind this? And what does this do to the Negro of the South? Suppose the Scotch-Irish immigrants in my state had lost most of their high school and college graduates. Would they have been able to build fine cities such as Charlotte and Atlanta?

What would have happened to more recent immigrants, the German, Irish, Jewish, Italian and Polish groups if year after year they lost two-thirds of their college boys and girls? Could they have helped build such cities as Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, Boston, and New York?

Yet there are Southern segregationists who smile at this migration. "We are losing our Negros", they say, but they live in a dream world, because the Negro high school and college graduate leaves behind his semi-literate brother, his older sister who works as a domestic, and his father who has arthritis and lives on welfare.

Thus the costs of two separate systems of education mount higher and higher, as welfare costs parallel the mounting figures. A tragic loss not only of wasted millions but of human resources.

HUMAN RELATIONS

Teenage Fantasies

DR. ROSE N. FRANZBLAU

QUESTION: I am 14 and am concerned about an ex-boy friend of mine. We are still good friends and discuss many things with each other.

He, too, it 14, and is planning to go to an all-boys school in September. He has an inferiority complex and says he wants to become a hermit. This summer he is going up to his country home, which he dislikes very much. It is very isolated there and there is no one for him to stay with. He claims he is going to stop all social activities.

At home there is no one in whom he can confide. He doesn't have a close relationship with his family (brother, 19, sister, 9). His parents are in the dark about the situation.

I have considered speaking to his parents if the situation gets worse, but I feel I don't know them well enough. They might think I am butting in and that it's none of my business. I am very concerned about this boy, because he has many good qualities.

Does he need treatment, or is it just a passing phase?

ANSWER: When a youngster needs sympathy or wants attention, sorrowful tales about how alone and misunderstood he is make people lend a listening ear and evoke a sympathetic reaction.

By appearing to suffer, they can readily obtain other youngsters to suffer along with them. In everyone's childhood experience, pain and discomfort have at some time or another been used to bring love and comfort from the parents, especially the mother.

At your age, when youngsters do not use this mechanism with parents for fear of being babied or shut in again, they try to evoke a similar kind of loving comfort from a girl friend or boy friend.

It would appear that it was you who broke up with this boy friend. Once having conquered and proven to yourself that you could get whomever you want, you may then have proceeded to reject him. Actually, you should not feel too badly about all this or about having engineered the breakup, with him, if you did.

To have continued to act out in reality any fantasy about this becoming a lasting relationship would have been very unrealistic. You no doubt agree that it would have been inappropriate for youngsters your age.

In all probability, if you hadn't done so first, he would have found a way to make you his ex-girl friend, without hurting your feeling or making you feel unwanted.

Nice and kind as he undoubtedly is, this boy may be using this tale of his suffering to retaliate. Making you feel guilty might make you return to him.

At that point, he would break it up. But then the rejection would not be as painful to you, because it would be that of confidante and guide, not that of a steady girl friend.

For you to believe his threats about isolating himself, ending all his social contacts and becoming a hermit would be to play into his fantasy and give it a degree of credibility that it cannot possibly deserve. Also, the idea of contacting his parents might be a kind of acting on your part.

Your role as a fairy godmother who would not only protect their child, but also guide his parents, would be seen as a childish fantasy and resented as an intrusion.

Actually, this boy will have many girl friends before he settles down with the lasting love of his life. You, too, will go through many such changes in your relationship until you find the true love of your life.

During these periods of development, parents, and even a close brother or sister, are usually the last ones in whom the adolescent can confide. He is afraid to voice his wishes or ideas for fear that the family will begin curtailing his freedom under the guise of protecting him. It is only people on the outside that he can tell what is going on inside him, without fear of being punished or hemmed in.

Actually, when the test came, you would not go to his parents and tell them what he has confided to you in secret. This would be to become a tale-bearer and to violate his confidence, as well as the confidence he had in you.

The only person who can enlighten his parents, if they really are in the dark, is their son. The chances are that they are already fully aware of the situation and are being as helpful as they can. After all, they have already been through this phase in the growth of a child with their older son. As parents, out of their love, they are better motivated to do the right thing by their son than any ex-girl friend is out of guilt or her need to play the fairy princess.

Slump in Schoolwork

QUESTION: I am a girl in the second year of high school, in a system called the Honor School, a special program for students with an average of 85 or above. Since my brothers were in the Honor School and succeeded with high averages, I thought I, too, was capable of it. The difference from the regular system is that I had to take chemistry instead of biology. I was more than happy to accept. My friends did, too.

I had trouble at first adjusting to the work but then all went well and I finished with an 86 average. It was lower than my previous 92 average. I failed the midterm exam but ended with an 85.

Now in my fourth term, I have the worst chemistry teacher and I have failed three out of four tests. I tried to accept the fact that I have a poor teacher and have tried to study on my own, but unsuccessfully. My brothers keep on telling me I'm an idiot. I believe them. I will be humiliated if I fail the Regents and have to go to summer school. I have discussed this problem with my parents. They sympathize with me, but are really disappointed in me. My friends are passing.

Chemistry is ruining my average, and my whole life. A tutor wouldn't help because my brothers try to but it doesn't seem to help.

What happened to make me do so badly in school?

ANSWER: Often, the problem with bright youngsters who suddenly begin to do poorly is not really a lack of basic ability, which they surely must know they have, but a sudden inability to concentrate and to stick to the particular task in hand.

Some of them go through such periods of distractability and develop terriffic annoyance with themselves when it shows up in poor work performance at school.

At this age, rivalry and competition with one's own sex for the attention of the opposite sex begins. Although the group may stick together and appear to operate as one, this may only be a cover-up for the unacceptable aggression they feel toward each other.

Underneath the surface there are forces pulling them in all directions, and petty jealousies and hostilities, quarrels and make-ups are rife. Ultimately, the group breaks up.

The youngster feels disloyal and traitorous to her friends because she feels so competitive socially and wants to out-distance them. She may then punish herself by behaving badly or doing badly in her schoolwork. This gives the others a feeling of superiority and evokes their sympathy instead of their antagonism.

If your chemistry teacher were really as bad as you say, the other students in the class would be having the same difficulty. Sometimes a relationship with a particular teacher somehow acquires a deeper meaning than appears upon the surface. By not learning what is taught in school the girl hopes she can postpone learning about herself, and still remain a little girl.

As the youngest and the only girl in the family, you must have enjoyed many extra attentions and recognitions. Whatever you did must have seemed better because you were the baby and a girl. Because they did not see you as a rival, your brothers could be nice and not hostile to you.

However, once you were old enough to enter their territory and be accorded the same honor, the emotional situation changed. You wanted to stay the baby but your brothers now saw you as a competitor. A failure which once would have brought sympathy and attention now brings jibes and belittling wise cracks.

The disappointment you feel is really with your parents for not controlling the situation and giving you the help you need. The teacher at school may well be the innocent target for the hostility you really feel for your mother. You cay see your mother being more partial to the boys than to you.

No more than your brothers can be your boy friends can they be your tutors. The help you need must be gotten from an expert in this subject who is an outsider. Your passing weakness must not be made into a family affair.

It would be mature on your part to handle this matter by putting aside your feelings and asking your teacher for advice on how to go about overcoming your study difficulty. If she thinks tutoring is advisable, you might ask her for a referral. You will find that admitting your weakness and asking for her help will make her sympathetic and helpful. She will cease to be an ogress. If, for some reason, you find it difficult to consult with her, than you could seek advice and help from your guidance counselor. There is no question that with your high ability you can do well in all subjects, even chemistry.

Unaccustomed as you are to failures, even though they may be temporary, you see in them an irreparable disaster. This is unrealistic. One can learn a great deal from one's failures, even how to succeed.

Psychology Of World War II

The Fox in the Attic. 352 pp. Richard Hughes. Musson. $4.50.

The historical events and psychological factors that led to the recent great war are complex and tangled — seemingly beyond unravelling. To draw some measure of coherence and meaning from this chaotic pattern is the unenviable task that Richard Hughes has set for himself in his novel "The Fox in the Attic" — the first instalment of an ambitious three-volume work entitled "The Human Predicament."

Through the eyes and actions of a group of variegated characters, the author explores the European intellectual, political and moral climate that made Hitler possible and brought disaster to the world. Actually, the pivotal incident of the book is the abortive Munich beer-hall putsch of 1923 which failed ignominiously and resulted in the flight and capture of a deflated but unregenerate Hitler.

Augustine Penry-Herbert, the novel's protagonist, is a prototype of the aristocratic Englishman who flourished in the generation between the wars. He is emancipated, rational and non-conformist; he believes in very little and is willing to fight for no cause. When this somewhat effete Oxford graduate goes to visit his German relatives, the Von Kessens, in their ancient castle, a vivid and sharp contrast is presented. The Von Kessens, still smarting from Germany's defeat in the war, are fiercely nationalistic and Spartan in their behavior and discipline. Caught in an economic inflationary whirl and living in a era without stability or purpose, they are ready for an inspired leader on horseback to lead them to domination and glory. In the attic of the old castle is a pet fox, and also a young zealot hiding from the police. He is a member of a secret Nazi-like organization dedicated to the assassination of liberal statesmen and leaders. Somehow, the shrewd animal and the youthful fanatic, forced to share the attic together, symbolize the mingled guile and hatred that was to lead millions to their doom.

Augustine's struggle to achieve personal meaning and happiness, especially through his relationship with a blind German girl, as well as a gallery of unusual characters — some of them bordering on the bizzare — add a dimension of depth and compassion to a work which, at times, seems to dwarf the more familiar problems of the human heart.

For the author, well known for his previous novel about the amoral nature of children "A High Wind in Jamaica," this is the first major work in twenty-four years. Six years were spent in its writing and in travelling extensively to study at firsthand the places described in the book and to interview participants or witnesses of the fateful Munich putsch of forty years ago.

Readers of this informed, perceptive and beautifully written novel will eagerly await the other two parts of this unusual trilogy.

DEAN RAND TO BE HONOURED HERE

Dean Ivan C. Rand has been selected as the recipient of this year's Annual Beth Sholom Brotherhood Award. Dean Rand is the twelfth recipient of this Award.

The Award will be presented at a special dinner which will be held in the Gerald Schwartz Memorial Auditorium, Beth Sholom Synagogue, 1445 Eglinton Avenue West, on Thursday, May 3rd, 1962, at 6:15 p. m.

Beth Sholom Synagogue, which has a membership of fifteen hundred families, has honoured those who have contributed in great measure to the furtherance of Brotherhood in our country.

Mr. Sam Blank is President of the Beth Sholom Brotherhood; Mr. Sidney Silver is President of Beth Sholom Synagogue, and Rabbi David Monson is the spiritual leader of the Synagogue.

After careful and considerable deliberation, the Special Awards Committee, under the Chairmanship of Mr. Sam Zale, selected The Honourable Ivan C. Rand because he has exemplified the heights to which we Canadians can aspire and achieve.

DEAN IVAN C. RAND

ZIONISTS APPEAL FOR UJA

In 1962, Israel will have to absorb an increased immigration from danger areas. This will tax its capacity to the utmost. The people of Israel are welcoming now waves of newcomers. They have already increased their own taxes, both direct and indirect, and, in addition, have inaugurated a compulsory loan to help pay for the absorption of these newcomers. But despite all the sacrifices they are making, they will not have sufficient resources to provide the homes, the training, the care that will be needed to start them on the road to self-support.

In view of this emergency, every member of the Canadian Jewish Community is urged to give fullest support and service to the current effort to raise the $6,250,000 minimum goal of the United Israel Appeal and the Congress-United Jewish Relief Agencies which must provide the funds to effectively and speedily transport, re-settle and absorb these immigrants. Only by allowing the United Jewish Appeal full priority in both thought and deed can the Jewish people hope to take advantage of the great opportunity for saving thousands of lives and making them worth living.

All Zionists and Zionist groups were called upon to carry forward the task of saving human lives and strengthening Israel's free and democratic people by assuming the role of pace makers in the UJA drive, also by setting an example to others by the generosity of their giving and the zeal of their efforts.

This statement is endorsed by the following organizations: Zionist Organization of Canada, Lawrence Freiman; Labour Zionist Organization of Canada, Dr. S. B. Hurwich; Mizrachi-Hapoel Hamizrach Organization of Canada, Rabbi S. M. Zambrowsky; Zionist-Revisionist Organization of Canada, Nathan Silver; Achdut Haavoda, Max Federman; Hadassah-Wizo Organization of Canada (National), Mrs. Nina Cohen; Pioneer Women's Organization of Canada, Mrs. Dora Israelson; Mizrachi Women's Organization of Canada, Mrs. I. Lieff.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

POPPY SEED COOKIES

¾ cup sugar
½ cup vegetable shortening
2 eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
4 teaspoons lemon juice
2½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 pkg. (2 oz.) poppy seeds (about ½ cup)

Cream together sugar and shortening. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add lemon peel and lemon juice. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Add to creamed mixture. Add poppy seeds. Roll portions of dough onto a lightly-floured board or pastry cloth about ¼-inch thick. Cut with pastry wheel or cookie cutter, into squares or triangles. Place on lightly-greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate, 350 degree oven 10 to 15 minutes or until edges are slightly browned. About 6 dozen.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

it is, therefore, well to remember that dukes of the blood royal have precedence over ordinary dukes, that dukes have precedence over marquises, and marquises over earls.

If the Archbishop of Canterbury should be at your wedding he should be placed on the right side of the rabbi. The Senior Warden of your synagogue should have precedence over the Financial Representative, and the Hon. Life-President should have precedence over both.

It is advisable that certain categories of people should not be placed together; thus, for example, a Reform and Orthodox rabbi, couples lately divorced, opposing litigants, and cut-price grocers with grocers who do not cut prices.

You may feel that all this rigmarole can be avoided by confining the festivities to a reception — that is, by keeping all your guests on their feet. This would mean no speeches, and a Jewish marriage without speeches is not fully consummated.

A new alternative is now being considered — a vast reception hall, circular in shape, which would have an immense round table.

It is the solution which King Arthur found for his troublesome knights, and it may be the best solution for your troublesome guests.

Molly Picon's MISH-MASH

How did I get started in a theatrical career? Mama gave me my first push. Mama was a dressmaker. Since we lived around the corner from the Columbia Theatre in Philadelphia, Mama's first customer was an actress, Fannie Thomashefsky. If the name rings a bell, it should. She was the sister-in-law of Boris Thomashefsky, the famous Yiddish actor. One day Mama was on her knees with a mouth full of pins, draping Fannie's ample figure, when a thought struck her. "Molly, sing a little something for the lady." Nine year old Molly needed no urging, and burst into song. Mama was so proud and excited she stuck Mrs. Thomashefsky with a pin. Nevertheless, the actress liked my performance and promised to let me sing in her next show. When she left, I jumped up and down and shouted. "Hurrah, I'm an actor!"

Mothers are all alike. Years later, a woman barged into my dressing room with her little girl who was dressed in an exact copy of a costume I wore in Circus Girl. "My daughter is crazy about you," she began. "I have to take her to see all your plays. She stands in front of a mirror a whole day copying everything you do. She insisted on coming back stage to meet you." The child stood motionless, staring at the floor. "Go on, Sandra, tell Miss Picon how much you love her, how you want to be just like her when you grow up. Show her how you can sing and make funny eyes like Shmendrick." Poor Sandra stood frozen. In desperation, her mother said, "All right, so you won't sing. But at least tell the lady, she should hear it from your own lips, who your favorite actress is." Finally the girl spoke up: "Mickey Mouse."

You see? Sometimes coaxing is the worst thing you can do to a child, especially when it comes to eating. But when you serve appetizing Rokeach Foods, coaxing, of course, is never necessary. With bad weather around, your children need all the nourishment that a good hot bowl of Rokeach Vegetable Soup can give them. You never have to worry about vitamins with Rokeach Vegetable Soup on the menu. It's prepared with no less than 15 different vegetables. What other soup gives you so many? And here's another blessing, from Rokeach . . . Tomato Sauce with Mushrooms. Pour it over rice, baked fish, meat loaf, whatever you want eaten up in a hurry. So stop coaxing the kids to eat. Use psychology . . . and a little of that delicious Rokeach Tomato Sauce with Mushrooms.

Christian Woman Minister — Z. Esther

Speaks On Youth Aliyah

"Dignity of human life is the most outstanding quality in Israel," said Reverend Nancy Elizabeth Forsberg, an ordained Christian Congregational minister.

Speaking at a Youth Aliyah Rally in Holy Blossom Temple, Reverend Forsberg told of her interest and impressions of Israel.

Althongh hard-core refugees are refused entry in most countries, she noted that in Israel where every life is precious, the most primitive immigrants are welcomed with warmth and love.

A graduate of Yale Divinity school, the woman minister is a former college chaplain and is executive secretary of the New Jersey Christian-Palestine Association, and a life member of American Hadassah.

Reverend Forsberg's interest in Youth Aliyah was sparked following two visits to Israel and she is presently devoting a year to speaking on its behalf.

Youth Aliyah was founded by Hadassah leader Henrietta Szold in 1935 in order to rescue Jewish children facing extermination from Hitler's super Aryan monsters.

More than 100,000 children have been brought to Israel for rehabilitation and education.

Results achieved by trained Youth Aliyah workers in Israeli reception centres were cited by the minister.

A dramatic but typical example involved a young boy in a centre for unwanted children who spewed out his hate in carving a wooden dagger.

When the boy was ready to leave the centre, he presented his instructor with a carved wooden letter opener. The love and understanding extended by the workers to the boy who had known only fear and privation had turned an object of hate and destruction into a gift of love.

The Rally was conducted by Mrs. Sydney Wise, president and attracted some 400 members.

Mrs. Bernard Mayer, Youth Aliyah co-ordinator outlined the forthcoming campaign.

The program featured a play "A Gift Of Life" presented by the Hadassah Drama Group, and the choir.

B'nai Israel Fashion Show

The Brotherhood and Sisterhood of the Congregation will present Ladies and Gentlemen's Fashion Show at the Synagogue on April 8. The French Consul and his wife are expected to be on hand. The program is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Louise Goodman, with Mr Joel Litchen acting as puo licity chairman. The com mentator for the men's fashions will be Mr. Norman Dyan.

FRIEND OR FOE?

By RUTHIE

This is a form of apology to all of my dear relatives and friends who have been trying to reach me during the past two weeks — in vain.

You've guessed it! The kids have tied up the phone and I'm in knots.

"Gevald (mercy)", I scream in vain, pulling my hair, "leave the phone alone already! Does it ever occur to you that maybe someone's trying to call me?"

All ears are deaf. It's exam time and, if you're a parent of a school-ager, you know what I mean.

First one starts, "I'm calling up Milly. I have to ask her about the geometry."

Well, far be it from me to interfere. God forbid, should the final result by less than passing. I shall be accused of standing in the way of progress.

So I timidly stifle the urge to kill and spend about an hour listening to definitions and axioms. And interspersed in this conversation are suggestions of how to tease the hair for the latest horror.

It wouldn't be so bad if it were only that. However, the line forms on the right. Pretty soon another keeps nudging.

"Hurry up! I want to call Debbie and ask her what she's doing Saturday night, in case Sandy phones."

What Debbie has to do with Sandy's call I don't know. But I gave up figuring out my kids long ago. I do know, though, that this will mean another hour gone to waste.

Should I protest, the come-back is,

"You always say this is our home and we can do whatever we like."

If, by chance, the receiver should rest in its cradle for a fraction of a second, you can be sure the phone will ring — with their friends at the other end of the line.

I wish I had enough gumption to disconnect them right in the middle of their nonsense. But then my life wouldn't be worth a plugged nickel.

"You're giving me a complex. I can't face my friends. They think I'm a baby." Ad nauseum.

They're dying to have a Princess phone. Nothing doing! How spoiled can they get? Anyway, I'd never be able to sleep, thinking the brats are talking long after I've gone to bed.

Once in a while, I do have the luck to make a call. However, no sooner am I immersed in conversation, than I hear,

"Mommy, please! It's getting late, and I must call Anna for the Latin homework."

The phone is supposed to be a blessing. But many is the time I'd love to pull it from its socket.

My husband got himself an office away from the office. No more does he receive important calls at home. He uses the public phone booth at the corner gas station.

Remember when telephones were still a novelty? The candy store proprietor yelled up,

"Hey, Goldberg, telephone!"

Now the garage attendant calls, "Telephone for you!"

Once again . . . the words of freedom, hope and warmth, unchanged through the generations. The Seder is ready, the "afikoman"-set aside The wine cups are filled, the kitchen brims with promise. The children wait - scrubbed, hungry, curious, solemn.

• After Tony Martin (Moishe to us) finished his routine at the Eden Roc in Miami Beach, a woman asked him for his autograph for her niece. She said: "Make it to Beatrice." Tony obliged. Then she persisted: "Write something personal,' and the singer wrote, "With sincere wishes."

The woman looked at his script and said: "But I can't read this." Martin apologized for his poor handwriting. "Never mind," she said. "A Perry Como you ain't."

• Sen. Hubert Humphrey was chosen the best Twist dancer at a party given by Otto Preminger after the screening of "Advise and Consent,' in Washington.

• Having had a slight lunch, Robert Merrill, who sang "La Forza del Destino" at the Met, was famished. The props in the banquet scene included a piece of real bread. Merrill broke it into pieces and, inobtrusively, ate it all onstage.

• Eddie and Liz will "cash in" out of "Cleopatra Enterprises," marketing dolls, etc.

• Looks like the Twist has had its day. Song publishers are rejecting bundles of Twist tunes every day.

• Shari Lewis is very versatile. Besides being a puppeteer, she's a good actress, pianist, dancer, vocalist. Quite a load for a little girl!

• David Merrill's 7-year-old son, David, will be auditioned by the Met for its Children's Chorus next month.

• Leo, Walter Slezak's 13-year-old son, will tour with the star this summer in "Fanny."

• The Arthur Murrays own no stock in Arthur Murray Inc., which franchises all the Murray schools. Murray merely gets $10,000 a year — less than his secretary.

THEATRE HI-LITES

• O'Keefe Center has a treat in store when it presents next week Beatrice Lillie and Roberto Iglesias and his world famous Spanish Ballet. How many know that Bea was born in Toronto, May 29, 1898? That makes her our very own, no matter how long she's been away.

Beatrice Lillie made her first appearance on the stage in 1914, and, from then on through the years, it was clear sailing. She appeared all over the world — New York, London, Paris, Australia, Japan. Beloved by all, she is still a one-woman phenomenon. Alone onstage, she plays all the parts and sings all the songs with the inimitable satire which has brought her a world-wide following.

Miss Lillie will be onstage for one entire half of the show. The other half will feature the return engagement of Roberto Iglesias and his Ballet Espanol. Only five-and-a-half years old, this company has already danced to enthusiastic audiences all over the world.

• Till April 14th, the Village Playhouse is presenting George Bernard Shaw's "Don Juan in Hell" to enthusiastic audiences. After this production, it is more than certain that manager Donald Meyers and partner Elspeth Gaylor will come up with something just as spectacular in May.

• At the Red Barn, Central Library Theater, all three plays — The Balcony, The Rivals and One Way Pendulum — are running neck-in-neck in popularity. The Balcony, starring Tobi Weinberg, seems to be a little in the lead.

Joseph Shaw emotes as the judge in N. F. Simpson's One Way Pendulum, one of three plays currently playing at the Red Ban, Central Library Theater.

• According to the original intentions of Civic Square Theater, foreign films are being interspersed successfully with legitimate plays. The newest picture to be presented soon, as released by Antony Ferry, co-director with Harvey Hart, is the Polish film, "The White Bear." The theme of this 90-minute feature centers around the courage and ingenuity of a Jewish would-be Nazi victim who escapes the tormentors cloacked in the skin of a white bear. A must for everyone!

• Daniel Barenboim, Israeli piano prodigy who will be featured soloist with the TSO under the baton of Walter Susskind, Tuesday, April 10th, at Massey Hall, just completed a successful series of concerts in New York. He is being sponsored here by Hadassah.

THEATRE IN TORONTO

By BARBARA I. PEARL

IRMA LA DOUCE AT O'KEEFE

For a glimpse of the shady side of Paris, "Irma La Douce," playing at the O'Keefe Centre till April 7th, is a fair example. Though somewhat on the incongruous side, David Merrick's presentation of this delightful musical comedy, which stars Taina Elg, Denis Quilley and Joseph Bova, is amusing from start to finish.

Of course, the plot is silly. Who ever heard of a poule (tart) who exudes warmth; a mec (pimp) who arouses sympathy; or a saloon keeper whom one wishes well? All this, one finds in the milieu (part of Parisian underworld), where a mec is parted quickly from some grisbi (money).

Furthermore, isn't it daffy for a pimp — in this case, a law student — to fall in love with this shady lady to such an extent that he assumes the identity of a fictitious character who solely occupies Irma in order to keep her from other arms?

And then the fun begins. Irma (Taina Elg) loves both Nestor, the student, and Oscar, the wealthy client (Denis Quilley) who, in reality, are one. Later on, when Nestor "disposes" of Oscar, results are almost catastrophic. In court, it is erroneously decided that Nestor foully did away with his "shadow." He is sentenced to an island with other convicts, whence his return is nigh to impossible. But escape he does, in his own inimitable way.

Meanwhile Irma finds herself with child. Naturally Nestor returns in time to make his offspring — twins — legitimate.

If the plot is absurd, why not? It is good to lose oneself for several hours in a world of make-believe, especially when a spectacle is entertaining and exhorts constantly chuckles and guffaws.

Miss Elg portrays a charming Irma. Mr. Quilley seems a bit self-conscious at first. But he quickly assumes character and supports Irma faithfully. It is, however, Joseph Bova who draws most laughs. Whether in the part of timid narrator, bawdy saloon keeper or jovial judge (more like a Punch and Judy puppet), Mr. Bova epitomizes the height of hilarity.

Songs to be remembered are: Valse Milieu, Our Language of Love, Dis-Donc, Wreck of a Mec, Irma-La-Douce.

DATELINE: HAMILTON

AS I SEE IT

By PAUL HANOVER

The For Sale sign is up for Sam Lax's cruiser. How old is it? Well let's just say that the only offer so far came from the casting director of The Untouchables.

There are so many walkers these days, Main West is beginning to look like the old Rosh Hashana run between the Cannon Street and Hunter Street Shuls. Remember? And here's the irony of it all. Where are these walking enthusiasts come during the High Holidays and Shabbat? A "walker" of long standing (there's something wrong somewhere) is Dentist, Dr. Sam Rosen. We've observed him more than once a solitary figure leaning into the wind, crossing the Gaza Strip, more familiarly known as McKitric Bridge. I also believe the Doctor must be a founding member of the newly popular Couples Club in this Walk-For-Health craze. Many are the Sunday and evenings he and Ida do the heel and toe bit. Reuben and Bella Levy are among the newer members — to our eyes anyhow. And we can't mention that venerable International Iron V. P. without passing comment on the extra pleasure he afforded many of the youngsters at the recent Purim Megillah services. As a matter of fact, he did such a superb job in cueing them for the greger rolls, there's a job waiting for him as a T. V. director whenever he plans business retirement. The hit of the services was Nate Sherman's youngster. He was using his dad's old-style, Cadillac-sized, all-wood greger. And for those of us stuck with the tin jobs, it was yet more proof— they don't build 'em like they used to.

Here's my problem doctor. I don't know which I'd rather do: wear clothes like Harvey Sobel or sell 'em like Lou Davidson....

Seen Chinese-fooding with the Jerome Pollocks, one time Hamilton based furniture mogul, Cecil Yolles and his charming wife. Cec's favourite pastime is sailing, but then, you might say, what furniture man's isn't (Yock! yock!).

It's too bad he didn't build his own craft. What a name we could have given it: Yolle's Yawl. (Yock, again.)

Dorothy and Jerome Pollock passed along one of their amusing Hadassah-in-Israel experiences. As it comes to all holidayers, they found themselves short of funds in the waning days of their visit. Out came the Israeli bonds and into currency land they went. The very next day the government devalued the pound, a manouvre that cost them a fair penny. Quite an admission from such an astute accountant, too. Jerome laughingly insists it was a deliberately planned move by the financial officials. No grudges are being borne, though. The hospitality and special considerations shown them all more than made up for this upsetter.

Another pleased person was Marion Bennett, whose storehouse of amusing memories have put her on the trail of some writing talent who could help translate it all into a Broadway-style musical.

Some unexpected reaction to this column came from Barry Sobel, whose mother, Beverley, read him our comments re: his Zayde, Bill Ginsberg. When he heard our mention of Bill's music making in the dance bands of the Roaring Twenties, young Barry gasped, "The Roaring Twenties! I didn't know grandpa was on Television!"

Visions of the Rabbi Leiner case in Toronto must have flashed through the mind of our own Rabbi Green not too many days ago. It was 4:30 p.m. on a Friday. He was hurrying home for the Sabbath services when it happened. Kaboom, a collision! This meant delay — licenses to be shown, explanations to be made, police to wait for. But luck was with him. Not only was the officer an understanding person, so was the driver of the car he hit. They were most understanding, as a matter of fact, although not at the moment the collision occured. With a mouthful of expletives ready to be hurled, the victim did a double take when Rabbi Green turned out to be the other driver. The victim? Celia Kessler.

GREAT EVENT

GHETTO ANNIVERSARY TO BE OBSERVED HERE

The 27th day of Nissan in the Hebrew Calendar has been accepted by the World Jewish Congress and the Knesseth of Israel (Israeli Parliament) as a Day of Remembrance for the martyrs and heroes of our people in the fight against Nazi persecution. This year, the 27th of Nissan, the 19th Anniversary of the heroic uprising of the Warsaw Ghetto, is on Tuesday, May 1st.

All rabbis are requested to include in the services of Thursday, April 26th (last day of Pesach) or on Saturday, April 28th, the commemoration of the martyrs. Principals of schools are requested to plan programs for school assemblies and to include in the lesson plans during the week around the date program material related to Jewish Remembrance Day. Special observances will be held during the Seder ceremonies with a special Ritual of Remembrance to be followed.

The major event in Toronto — sponsored by Canadian Jewish Congress in co-operation with the congregations, Jewish educational institutions and organizations of Toronto, directed to the entire Jewish community — has been scheduled at the Beth Tzedec Sanctuary on Monday, April 30th, 1962 at 8.15 p.m., the eve of the Remembrance Day. Pupils of Toronto schools will light memorial candles and Cantor Joseph Cooper, together with those in attendance, will recite the mourning prayers. The chairman of the Observance event will be Mr. Meyer W. Gasner, Chairman of the Canadian Jewish Congress, Central Region.

Rabbis Dr. W. Gunther Plaut of Holy Blossom Temple, Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg of Beth Tzedec Congregation and Dr. Walter S. Wurzburger of Shaarei Shomayim Congregation will address the community on this occasion. The speaker in Yiddish will be Dr. Joseph Diamond, Executive Director of the Bureau of Jewish Education of Toronto.

Two choirs, the Holy Blossom Youth Choir, under the direction of Mr. Ben Steinberg, and the Farband Folk Choir, under the direction of Mr. Bernard Papernick, will sing songs of the Ghetto and Partisans and songs of reborn Israel. Mr. Alan Blye, well known actor and singer of the C.B.C. and cantor of Temple Sinai will recite the proclamation of the Ghetto fighters. Mr. Erich Schaefter will play the musical prelude and epilogue on the organ.

A special major event directed to the Toronto Jewish youth is being planned to take place on Sunday, April 29th, under the auspices of the Y.M. & Y.W.H.A. with the participation of all Jewish youth organizations in Toronto.

COMMUNITY DISCUSSES RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

The Hamilton Viceroy Reading Lodge of B'nai B'rith sponsored a panel discussion on religious education in the public schools at the Jewish Community Center on Tuesday, March 27th.

The panel members were: Mr. Sidney M. Harris, national chairman of the Community Relations Committee, Canadian Jewish Congress; Rabbi Bernard Baskin, Temple Anshe Shalom; Mr. Les Freeman, inspector of public schools, Hamilton. Panel moderator was Mr. Lewis S. Ross, past president of the Viceroy Reading Lodge.

Mr. Sidney Harris opened the discussion with a history of religious education in the schools, from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present day. He also gave examples of how other Ontario communities have solved this educational problem to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Mr. Les Freeman spoke on the regulations governing religious education in the schools and how they were implemented.

Rabbi Baskin explained that many people opposing religious teaching in the public schools have been termed anti-religious; but, in fact, this is not so.

The real objection is: the tax payers' money is being used to indoctrinate children with religious views contrary to those held by their parents.

In the course of the discussion, Rabbi Baskin informed the audience that a brief, requesting the Hamilton Board of Education to consider the abolition of religious education in the schools, be presented by the Ethical Education Association of Hamilton.

SENSATIONAL NEW INVENTION
HEARING AID which NEVER NEEDS BATTERIES
ULTIMA has a built in ELECTRONIC GENERATOR activated by body heat, works month after month and year after year.
EXTREMELY SMALL
As there is no battery and battery compartment, the complete instrument is so tiny that it is hidden entirely inside of the ear, being almost invisible even if worn by men. Yet it has power to correct quite severe hearing loss, up to 75% and more if used binaurally.
NO BATTERY
You do not put a new main spring in your watch when it runs down - you wind it up. Exactly the same way you polarize, "wind up", the generator in the ULTIMA for the next days service. There is virtually no operating cost because the polarizer does not need or use electricity of any kind, it costs only a few dollars and has a service life of up to two years.
AMAZING PERFORMANCE
When inserted into the ear, the ULTIMA warms up in a couple of seconds and the net-work starts working, giving an unbelievable clear performance, never achieved with a battery operated hearing aid. No distortion, no static, no annoying noises. Automatic volume control keeps the volume in the desired level in any condition. A binaural ULTIMA gives an excellent directional hearing.
TROUBLE FREE
Like a precision watch, the ULTIMA has all components incapsulated, it is moisture proof and shock proof. The first hearing aid which practically never needs repair service and never lets you down when you need it most badly.
PRESCRIPTION MADE
The ULTIMA is 100% custom made. The complete instrument is built into a thin earmold, made according to your ear impression, and fits deeply in your ear. The natural flesh color makes it hardly noticable. The ULTIMA gives the exact volume and frequency response to bring your hearing to the normal level. The circuit is built by experts according to the hearing tests made in our office. You can be absolutely sure that you get the very best hearing with the very best instrument available. It is also quite inexpensive, it costs much less than you expect to be the cost of this wonderful aid.
We would be glad to give you all detailed information and to show you this great, very great invention, without obligation to you. The ULTIMA is the ultimate of wearing comfort, accurate hearing correction and trouble free operation. Made by the largest manufacturer of technical equipment for the hearing aid industry ,each ULTIMA is fully guaranteed.

DATELINE: THE WORLD • It Happened Last Week •

• Do you know that Van Cliburn practices the piano only between 1 a.m. and 9 a.m.? This conflicts with the sleeping hours of his neighbors. Hence Cliburn made arrangements to practice at Steinway Hall. He is locked in there all night long with a coffee-making machine and edibles until the watchmen open the doors at 8 a.m.

• On a Sunday, Danny Kaye awoke early and noticed that the day looked clear and sunny. In no time, he took a cab to the airport where he piloted his new eight-passenger plane to Florida to see the Dodgers in training. And I find it a big deal to walk to the corner supermarket!

• A rabbi in New York sent a Purim telegram to a friend. There was only one word, "Mizpah." The operator asked what the word meant. Said the rabbi: "It means that the Lord watches between thee and me when we are absent one from another." After hesitating, the operator said: "O. K. I'll let it go this time. But you're certainly getting a bargain from Western Union."

• Without a score, 86-year-old conductor Pierre Monteaux led the London Symphony Orchestra through Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" and then Richard Strauss' "Ein Heldenleben." All this without a single miscue!

At a Yemenite wedding in Israel: the bride dances with friend.

• Airlines are at present in bad straits, since passengers are rushing to buy economy tickets. Trans-Canada line, despite record passenger loads, lost $6 million this last year. Economy class passengers vaulted from 44% to 79%.

• Herman Wouk wrote this letter to Leonard Lyons: "My Fire Island house undoubtedly was washed away in the recent storm, as reported. A fantastic thing then happened. On the next tide it was washed back into exactly the same place it formerly stood, with not a nail or board out of place. I attribute this miracle wholly to the sabbath services held in the house the past 10 years.

"Cast your bread (or your house) upon the waters..."

• Scholars are astounded at Kathleen Coburn, University of Toronto English professor who is also the world's greatest Samuel Taylor Coleridge scholar. She had to decipher the notes Coleridge penned in Hebrew, Greek, Latin, German, Italian. They were in cryptograph and in shorthand.

LAND OF HOPE

A CANADIAN JEWISH NOVEL

By CLARA HOFFER & F. H. KAHAN

SYNOPSIS

At the age of 18, after studying farming for four years and working as overseer of a large estate, Israel Hoffer decided to leave his native Austria for parts unknown. He wanted a farm of his own, but had no money nor any way of getting any. Then he heard that the Baron de Hirsch Institute of Paris was sending former students at its own expense to Canada to participate in the settlement of Jewish farmers.

Israel became interested, and despite his fears about the vast country of Canada, he was led on by the lure of cheap land that one could claim and eventually own. In the year that Saskatchewan became a province Israel and a group of friends set out for Hirsch in that province, against the wishes of his father. On the way to his new homeland in a filthy cattle freighter of the Canadian Pacific Railway he met Clara Schwartz, and was attracted instantly to this slight, attractive, 16-year old girl. After arriving in Quebec Clara and her family went on to Lipton, while Israel and his party proceeded to Hirsch.

When Israel arrived at Hirsch he was hired by Rabbi Berner for $125 a year. He had to do household chores and teach the Rabbi farming, but he learned English. In his second year he saved enough money from working on nearby farms to send for his father. He also saved enough to start his own farm.

The site of Israel's new homestead was in the rough Badlands in the south of Saskatchewan. Before leaving he heard many terrifying tales of the severe winters, and reports that now the country was made treacherous by the spring floods. These tales frightened his father, Reb Moshe, who finally agreed to accompany his son only until he became settled.

Finally, at break of dawn in the month of June, 1907, Israel, Reb Moshe and Pearlman, who was to help Israel build a home in exchange for work, arrived in the village of Estevan. Pious Reb Moshe silently berated his son for bringing them to a place where there would be only horses and their own feet for transportation, and limited means of communication with their fellow men. But Israel, absorbed in his own thoughts, was unaware of inconvenience, heat and mosquitoes. He urged his horses forward.

The story continues.

"Well, can you blame him? The animals are worth more than we are. He paid a big price for the team, $375. He bought them from Fred Gibson in Alameda, with 12 percent interest on the payments. The cow cost $50 with the calf. That's not so bad, but it hasn't been paid for, either" He sighed. "The horses are broken and quiet, though, and horses here aren't like they are in the Old Country. There for that amount he could have had one of the best teams, with titles to go with them."

"It's a gevald;" declaimed Pearlman in a loud voice. "I know how much one has to pay here for horses, but when will he be able to pay such a debt? The interest itself will eat up the profits from the farm I tell you!"

Israel, catching Pearlman's outburst, looked up and smiled. "On the contrary," he fondly patted the mare, "I expect great things of Minnie and the cow to help me pay the interest."

Deep in thought, Israel was unprepared for what confronted them at the summit of a small rise. Covering the trail ahead of them was a wide long slough that seemed to the astonished young man big enough to be a lake. The horses stopped. Israel looked for a way around. He noticed that the ground around the slough was very muddy and swampy. He thought that it would be less risky to go through the water. Where water stands, the bottom is firm.

"Don't!" begged his father, guessing his intention. "Do you want to drown us?"

"Look!" Israel pointed. "The water is not very deep. It'll hardly reach halfway up the wagon wheels. Besides it'll take too long to go around the slough and we want to reach our homested tonight."

"Pah. Don't give advice to children. They are stubborn. They have a mind of their own and they think they know it all," Pearlman said sarcastically.

Israel's face darkened under grimly drawn eyebrows. He shut his ears against the beratings from the older men which beat on him like a windstorm and drove the horses into the water, watching the wheels sink partly out of sight. Hardly had they gone a hundred yards when the horses stopped.

"Gee! Haw!!" Israel urged them on, pleaded with them, threatened them, cracked his whip, but all to no avail.

Sighing in exasperation he took off his top boots and socks, rolled up his overalls and eased himself into the water. He dug around the wheels with his hands. The reason for the horses' disobedience suddenly became clear. The wagon was stuck in a hole. He straightened up, pondered, then looked up at Pearlman.

"Come down from your high pedestal," he said. "We have to carry everything across to lighten the load. Otherwise we'll never be able to move the wagon from here."

"I told you so." Reb Moshe's eyes blazed fire. "You are so stubborn."

"I knew what would happen." Pearlman looked at Israel angrily but did not move from his dry perch on the baggage.

"Mr. Pearlman," Israel ordered, a sharp edge to his voice, "you'd better come down and help. We haven't much time to lose. We want to be home."

"Home?" Pearlman mocked. "Where is home?"

Reb Moshe made a sweeping embracing motion towards the uninhabited prairie. "This is the place my son wants to call home," he said bitterly, "this wilderness with no trees and no water except what is the sloughs."

"Stop it, you two! I heard enough. Home is where you make it and a wilderness stops being a wilderness when human hands touch it. The whole world was once upon a time a wilderness. Someone had to make a beginning towards civilization."

As if his father was afraid of a wilderness, Israel thought wearily. Reluctantly Pearlman took off his shoes and socks, rolled up his overalls and sleeves and began moving down over the west wheels. He touched the water with a quiver, sighed heavily, and stepped down to the cold soggy bottom.

Israel rapidly filled his arms and began carrying load after load of equipment to dry ground striding impatiently through the water as though it were a field of stubble. Pearlman followed shakily with a small parcel.

"Be careful with my feather ticks!" shouted Reb Moshe from the wagon. "Don't make them wet! It's all I have left after selling everything to come here."

The hot sun beat down on them and at last Israel took the calf in his arms and, walking beside the wagon, coaxed the horses on. They pulled the wagon free with a jerk. In a matter of minutes they were across.

Going around the hills seemed to take an endless time. Israel rested the horses. The burden was too great for them, he thought. Just as one thought one had reached the top, there was another hill and still another, one hiding behind the other and all wearing closed jeering masks.

Israel remembered again the disappointment he had had on his first ispection trip the previous year. The agent in Alameda had told him his homestead had trees. But there had been no trees. No trees at all. Just bullrushes in the sloughs, stones on the hills, crocuses and buttercups and bluebells, but no trees.

Some of the hills were high however, and it was easy to imagine warring Indians hiding behind them, whooping over them, swooping down upon them, as they had in the century just past. Israel thought about the stories he had heard.

Buffalo hunting had been the chief industry of the country in the middle of the 19th century, and great caravans of native hunters came from the Red River country in Manitoba to take part in it. These hills had rumbled with the rolling wheels of thousands of Red River carts and echoed with the shouting of men on horseback who came West each summer to hunt the great shaggy beasts that roamed at will. But it was a dangerous sport, for the Teton Sioux, most warlike of all Prairie tribes, raided these caravans and killed the hunters.

These hills, so close to the United States border, were also witness to the activities of horse thieves and other unsavory characters infesting north Montana. Whisky traders from the States were most active in Cypress Hills in southwestern Saskatchewan and in southern Alberta, demoralizing various Indian tribes and robbing them at the same time.

To rid the country of this lawlessness, the famous North West Mounted Police in 1874 made a 1000-mile trek scouring the international border from Manitoba to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains in Alberta. They must have come around here, Israel thought, as the horses tugged at their heavy load, heads down and strong shoulder muscles pulling in the harness. There were 318 men and officers, with horses, oxen, cattle for slaughter, Red River carts and other equipment needed to sustain them.

This border, too, so close to both North Dakota and Montana, was crossed by many Metis rebels in flight from around Batoche and Duck Lake during the uprising of the Metis under the leadership of Louis Siel, in 1885.

"Badland country," Israel thought, guiding the wagon around a badger hole. It didn't look like badland country to him, yet the whole of the southern border from Roche Percee east of Hirsh to Shaunavon, over 200 miles west, was called badland country.

RUMANIAN CHIEF RABBI IN ISRAEL

JERUSALEM, (JCNS) — Rabbi Moshe Rosen, the Rumanian Chief Rabbi arrived here last week for a private visit which will last several weeks. He came from New York where he lectured for months at Yeshiva University. Prior to that, he was in Scotland where he visited relatives

While in Jerusalem Rabbi Rosen visited his father's grave, and attended the opening session of Eichmann's Appeal.

Bolivian Rabbi Honoured

LA PAZ, Bolivia, (JCNS) — Rabbi Gunther Friedlaender, rabbi of the Bolivian Jewish community, has been made a member of the order of the Condor of the Andes, Bolivia's highest distinction. This is believed to be the first time in Bolivian history that such an honour is bestowed on a Jewish leader.

The order was conferred by President Paz Estenssaro for the rabbi's "efficient intervention in the preparation and signature of the Agreements on Technical Co-operation and Cultural Interchange between Bolivia and Israel."

Rabbi Friendlaender is also Director of the Colegio Israelita, a Jewish Day School which, under his direction, has become a model school attended by Jewish and non-Jewish children.

The Jewish community of Bolivia numbers 4,000.

15 YEARS' IMPRISONMENT

JERUSALEM, (JCNS) — Efraim Margalit, the former Keren Hayesod official in France was sentenced by the Jeruslaem District Court to 15 years' imprisonment, after having been found guilty of charges in connection with misappropriation of Zionist funds.

Margalit was also instructed to pay I£11,000 costs for bringing eleven witnesses from France to testify against him. He had said he had none left of the money he was accused to have embezzled.

LIBERAL RABBI FOR NEW ZEALAND TEMPLE

WELLINGTON, (JCNS)— The Rev. C. Schwartz has been appointed temporary rabbi of the Temple Shalom, Auckland's Liberal Jewish Congregation. This is the first appointment of a Liberal minister in New Zealand, which has now two Liberal Congregations. The second is in Wellington.

Rabbi Schwartz, who was born in Germany, was educated in Australia where he gained a first class honour degree at Melbourne University. In 1957, he was ordained as a Liberal Jewish minister.

AMERICAN JEWISH COUPLE ADOPT CHRISTIAN BABY

LONDON, (JCNS) — The Court of Appeal yesterday decided that permission be given to an American Jewish couple to adopt a non-Jewish child, thus over-ruling a decision given last November by the Marylebone County Court.

The couple who come from California but now live in London, have been looking after the child since May. Lord Justice Omerod said that there was no evidence the child had ever been baptised, and it was not enough to consider only the religious aspects of the case. The paramount consideration was the welfare of the child. The Court came to the conclusion that the County court judge (Judge Andrew) had exaggerated the religious aspect of the case, particularly since the child in question was less than one year old. The child who was illegitimate, was born to a 17-year-old Protestant girl last March.

NEW ORTHODOX SYNAGOGUE IN NORTH ISLAND

WELLINGTON, N. Z. — (JCNS) — New Zealand is to have a new Orthodox Synagogue for a small, but growing, community on the east coast of the North Island.

The President of Hawke's Bay United Hebrew Congregation, Mr. E Neufield announced last week that the synagogue, costing about £5,000 and designed to seat 100 people, would be erected by July in Hastings. It will be the first Orthodox synagogue to be constructed in New Zealand for many years, and follows from a visit paid to the small community by the Chief Rabbi Dr. Israel Brodie, last month.

CANADIAN PANORAMA

Jewish enrolment of 90%; Outremont and Strathcona high schools each have over 80%; Baron Byng, the downtown equivalent to Toronto's Harbord Collegiate, has dropped to fourth position with 75% (Baron Byng High School in the Eleury-St Urbain area is the locale of the reminiscences for most of Mordecai Richler's schooldays).

In addition to these 21, there are four schools where Jewish children form from 40 to 50% of the total registration (two are elementary and two are high schools).

Thirty-eight years ago, in 1924, there were eleven Protestant schools with a majority of Jewish pupils, all of which were in the old area of the Jewish population, between Hutchison and St. Denis Streets.

It would be interesting to compare the figures with Toronto to see the demographic parallels. In Montreal, of course, the information is currently pertinent because the Jewish community is appearing now before the Quebec Royal Commission on Education to obtain some recognition for itself in the province's school structure.

The Jewish Year Book of 1962 is off the press. This annual reference book follows the insular tradition by omitting the adjectives British and Anglo — from its name, just as the British Post Office disdains to identify its postage stamps by showing the country of origin on the face of the stamp. After all, its being British should be enough for people to know it as such, shouldn't it?

The year book is a compendium of material and information with emphasis, of course, on Anglo-Jewry and up on various Jewries of the Commowealth. Its "Who's Who" section includes a number of Canadians, such as: Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto; Lazarus Phillip of Montreal; Samuel, Saidye and Allan Bronfman; Carl Goldenberg of Montreal; Rabbi Abraham Feinberg; Judges Samuel Factor, Harry Batshaw and Ben Robinson; Lawrence Freiman; Ben Sadowski; Montague Raisman; the late Capt. William Sebag-Montefiore; Rabbi Wilfred Shuchat of Montreal's Shaar Hashomayim; Rabbi Harry J. Stern of Montreal's Temple Emanuel; Sam Zacks; Prof. Emil Fackenheim; Prof. Finkelman; Solomon Frank, Montreal rabbi; Allan Grossman, Ontario Cabinet Minister; Saul Hayes; A. M. Klein, Montreal poet; Montreal dietician, Dr. I. M. Rabinowitch; Montreal rabbi, Charles Bender; Louis Bloomfield of Montreal (now honorary consul of Liberia); Leon Crestohl; and David Croll.

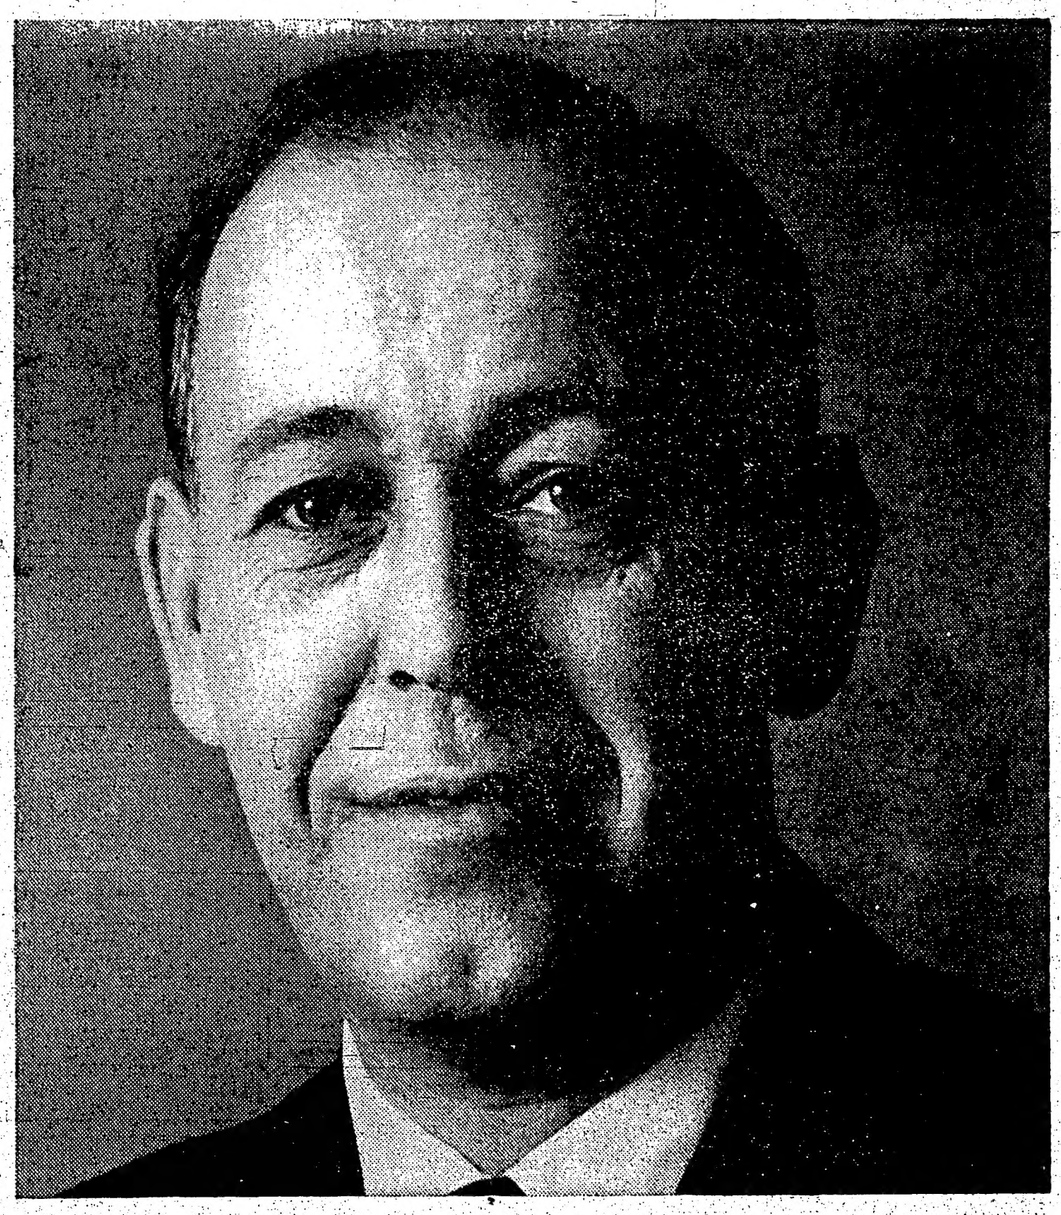
FELDMAN, ROSIN, KATZ & JONES



No. It isn't a law firm.

The four gentlemen are millionaires.

Millionaires who fly for El Al Israel Airlines.

(The term "millionaire" has nothing to do with their bank accounts; it's the trade designation for a pilot who's flown a million miles or more.)

Take the fellow on the upper left, Captain Samuel Feldman. He's logged over 2,900,000 miles. That's fifteen years' worth of piloting; 11½ years for El Al on everything from our original C46s to the 707 jets we operate today, and 3½ years for the U.S. Army Air Force on Liberators and Flying Fortresses during World War II. Sam was a Flight Commander.

Lower left is Captain William Katz. Another multi-millionaire: 3 million miles, most of it with El Al. Bill flew B17s for the U.S. 8th Air Force during the war, and holds the Distinguished Flying Cross.

The man in upper right is Captain Daniel Rosin. Two million miles behind the controls. Eleven years with El Al; a pilot for the South African Air Force during the war. Dan was co-captain with Tom Jones on the record-breaking jet flight from New York to Tel Aviv: 5,770 miles in 9 hours, 30 minutes; the longest non-stop flight in commercial aviation.

Lower right is El Al's fabulous Welshman, Captain Tom Jones. (They have trouble pronouncing his unusual name in Israel; it comes out Jonas.) Tom has logged 5 million miles in his twenty years with El Al, Scandinavian Airlines and the R.A.F.

He's our Chief of Flight Operations, but still likes to take a 707 out once a week or so. Says it's nice to get away from the desk.

There's Captain Zvi Tohar, our Superintendent of Flying. He's put in over 2½ million miles with El Al, the Israeli Air Force, and the R.A.F. Zvi is considered Israel's number one pilot.

These are some of the fliers who've made an airline out of El Al; who did such a brilliant operational job with the Britannia, and who are now building a reputation with the Boeing 707 jet; who've helped to raise a whole generation of fine Israeli pilots, many of them millionaires themselves.

Today, when you say you're flying El Al, people no longer look at you with a raised eyebrow and ask ..."Who?"

EL AL flies Boeing 707 jets from New York direct to London, Paris, Rome, Athens and Tel Aviv — Book through your travel agent.
